Welcome to the September 2010 issue of the Diseworth Dialogue

September.... mists and mellow fruitfulness.
Blackberry and apple pie and the heady scent of the first autumn bonfires. Oh, I do love this time of year!

As the harvest comes in and the children go back to school, we have time to sit back and reflect. It wasn't a bad summer after all. We used our barbeque a few times, the sunloungers even got an airing and we had a super crop of plums. No, not a bad summer at all.

So, as the swallows fly south and the air gets a little nippy in the evenings, what can we look forward to over the coming weeks. Well, the Open Flower Show is just days away and even though the annual ploughing match is not in Diseworth this year, it is still taking place in New Kingston. Iris Tebbutt's flower arranging classes continue in the village hall, see inside for details, and Muriel Howe urges us all to take photographs for a calendar the church is hoping to produce in time for Christmas. What a good idea.

It's also that time of year when, like Oliver Twist standing in front of Mr Bumble with an empty bowl, I ask "Please sir, can I have some more?" and I don't mean gruel! You will probably have already found the little brown envelope enclosed, and I would just like to say that production costs of the magazine continue to go up as sponsorship dwindles during these financially trying times. Each magazine now costs over £1 to make and without your generous donations, The Diseworth Dialogue is in real danger of coming to a standstill. So, please, please, please give whatever you can. Thank you.

Pastoral Letter

Well, that was a bit quick. It doesn't seem more than a few days ago that the school summer holidays started and now they're over and the new school year has started. Mind you, maybe it didn't seem quite so quick for the harassed adults trying to find fresh activities for their energetic offspring. Yes, I suppose that's it: whether something goes quickly or not depends on how we're involved with it. As a preacher my sermons seem to be over in a tick, but to the congregation.....it's helping them to think about eternity, but not in the way I intended. Oh well, time is funny stuff.

Recently I was thinking about those famous verses on time from the book of Ecclesiastes in the Bible:

There is a time for everything, and a season for every activity under heaven:
a time to be born and a time to die,
a time to plant and a time to uproot,
a time to kill and a time to heal,
a time to tear down and a time to build,
a time to weep and a time to laugh,
a time to mourn and a time to dance,
a time to scatter stones and a time to gather them,
a time to embrace and a time to refrain,
a time to search and a time to give up,
a time to keep and a time to throw away,
a time to tear and a time to mend,
a time to be silent and a time to speak,
a time to love and a time to hate,
a time for war and a time for peace.

The writer of those words is sometimes referred to as 'The Wise Preacher' or 'The Philosopher', but for my money he's the original grumpy old man. His general message seems to be: 'Well most things are a bit rubbish, life is chancy and then you die' You have to admit, that is classic grumpy old man stuff. But he's got a point, when we get up close to events, sometimes it can be very hard to see their meaning and very hard to see God at work in them.

In the book of Ecclesiastes, the Wise Preacher offers two responses to the strangeness of life. One is 'Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die'. Now, I've no particular problem with people eating, drinking and being merry, in fact that seems like a good celebration of life to me. But just partying now, because there's nothing tomorrow feels like a rather empty and somewhat purposeless philosophy. The alternative is to recall that 'God has set eternity in the heart of man'. In other words God has put a connection in all of us that helps us to begin to understand Him. Instead of giving up on understanding life and just indulging ourselves, we could take time to cultivate that connection and so discover something of God and his purposes for us. Often its only when looking back, some time afterwards that we can spot a pattern or a direction to all the strange things that happen in life. Then we might see that there is indeed 'a time for everything'.

Two little girls " Isabella Sophia Cheney" and "Erin Lily Smith" were Christened on the 4th July in the village church.

A large family gathering came together to welcome the latest additions to the Cheney, Farnan and Smith family. It was a wonderful day with both babies deciding that having water poured over them was no big deal – no tears from either of them!

Many thanks to Tony Edmonds for performing the baptism and giving the families such a warm welcome.

Many thanks also to Chris Duggan who took some wonderful photographs and to the Plough for providing us all with a lovely lunch.

FIRING UP THUNDERBIRD 4

As the days start to shorten, and the corn fields slowly start to change from green to gold, it is time to fire up the combine, known as Thunderbird 4.

For ten months of the year the big yellow beast, a New Holland 8060, lives quietly undercover, then about a week or two before combining is anticipated to start, Will fires her up and gets her out ready for servicing and any repairs that need doing.

This particular combine has been on the farm for twenty years, and it wasn't new when he bought it, but it does the job just as well now as when it first arrived. First job is to give the old girl a good wash down. Will doesn't wash the combine when he puts it away in the shed at the end of the season, as it is important for it to be put away dry. Less chance then of things rusting up over the winter. Next he gets down to checking all the belts, chains and pulleys in case any are worn and need replacing. The cutting knife on the front needs to be razor sharp to chop off the corn stalks cleanly, so that has to be checked to see if any of the sections need replacing. This whole servicing process takes a few days and once he is happy, he can fill her up with diesel and wait for the weather.

Many jobs on the farm are mucky, but this one is one of the dirtiest. Having to work under and partly within the innards of the machine, Will ends up covered in corn dust that has accumulated within the machine over many years. This results in the washer working overtime and lots of grimy water cascading down the plughole when he has a shower! So why does he do it himself instead of having a mechanic in? Mostly cost, but also because he can do it and he actually enjoys doing it.

Like most farmers he has a good basic knowledge of his machinery, and regularly does oil changes and repairs himself. A lot of farmers don't like new machinery as it is impossible to maintain it themselves as, in common with modern cars, they have computer controlled management systems.

So at lunch time Will announced that the combine is all ready to go, so he is going to mow a bit of winter barley. Half an hour later, the rain starts, and now he is sitting at the kitchen table reading the Farmers Weekly, drinking tea and eating a chocolate mallow biscuit. "Never mind, "I say cheerfully. "They say it will be dry tomorrow." I am crossing my fingers as I say this and hoping that the dry weather will continue. Soon I hope I shall be walking up the fields some afternoons, clutching a bag full of goodies, off to feed the man on his dusty yellow beast slowly mowing his way through acres of ripened corn.

Diseworth Millennium Meadow

The Millennium Meadow is available for use by all inhabitants of Diseworth and Long Whatton at any time. It is the perfect place for a quiet stroll, especially in an evening or very early in the morning. Hopefully, the grass will have been cut by the time you read this. All the trees are thriving and some are now quite an impressive size. Most of the special plants we introduced have settled in well and are beginning to spread and produce really good displays of flowers.

If you plan to have a picnic there, please do. Just let us know in advance if a large gathering is planned. Dogs are welcome in the Meadow provided they are under control and not allowed to foul the site. The small gate is always unlocked. Please ensure it is secured when you leave.

Diseworth Open Flower Show

Reminders

Diseworth Flower Show takes place on Saturday, September 11th, its traditional slot – the second Saturday of the month. Last year we had excellent weather and a very good attendance so we are keeping our fingers crossed. There are lots of attractions, including for the first time, a vintage car - a Model-T Ford in perfect working condition.

The steam engine, Robin Hood will be there again and there will be various stalls, including one with members of the local Police Community Support Team with advice on Home Safety. Teas will be served from 2.00pm onwards. There will be the usual Raffle, the Church will run a Tombola and there will be Pony Rides, Recycling information from NWLDC, a Plant Stall, a Heritage Centre Information Stall and Long Whatton Scout Group will be there.

We hope that the entries will be of the usual high standard. If you have never “had a go” before, why not try this year. There are four photography classes again this year and for the first time - a tallest sunflower competition for adults. For details of all the other, traditional, classes, please see the previous issue of the Dialogue, or the schedule.

The main beneficiary of this year’s show will be the Parish Church’s fund for the installation of toilet facilities, and donations will also be made to the British Legion and the local Scouts and Guides & Brownies Groups.

This year we are very happy that the Presentation of Trophies will be made by our Rector – the Rev. Gill Turner-Callis, to whom we extend a most warm welcome.

If you have not yet received a copy of the full Show Schedule, or if you would like extra copies for friends or family, do please contact Pat Guy – 811119.

Sunflower Measuring will take place on the afternoon of Friday, September 3rd - starting at 2pm. If you have a plant to be measured - please let Pat Guy know before 12.00 noon that day. Ring 811119 or pop a note into 51 The Woodcroft with your name, address and a telephone number.

Entries on the Day

Please remember that the Village Hall is open for Show Entries between 9.00 am and 11.30 am on the morning of the Show. A further half-hour is then allowed for the arranging of your exhibit, but all exhibitors must leave the Hall by 12 Noon when the judging will commence.

If you are absolutely unable to attend during these hours, arrangements can be made to leave entries with one of the stewards. Please contact Pat Guy if this is necessary.

Pat would also be very grateful if any able-bodied people who are available would come to the Village Hall at about 6.00pm on the Friday evening (the 10th) to help set up the Hall ready for the next morning. She would also be even more grateful if a similar group would stay behind at the end of the Show to help tidy up and put everything away.

My 90th Pint

When I first went to donate blood back in May 1965 you could only donate twice a year, some years later this was increased to three times a year.

After donating 25 pints of blood I received a silver bar pin brooch and after 50 pints a gold bar; also I was awarded a cut glass Edinburgh crystal plate in May 1994. All being well, when you read this I will have given my 90th pint on August 23rd.

Being quite well and no serious health problems, my aim by the end of 2013 is to have donated my 100th pint.

More from

‘Grumpy of Diseworth’

In 1978 my good wife and I purchased our house in Clements Gate. It was in a bit of a state and we spent considerable time and effort in a brave attempt to make it more presentable. With, I like to think, some success [if I might say so, modestly, myself].

In the intervening thirty years or more its façade had become somewhat faded – to the point that it was now detracting from the general ambiance of our locality. Accordingly, in July, I finally decided that something had to be done, so I set to and returned to decorating/renovation mode – in order to alleviate our embarrassment from letting the side down. This involved erecting some scaffolding because I’m only 6 foot tall and the house, as you might envisage, is a bit bigger.

All went well until I received a letter of censure from North West Leicestershire County Council, Highways Department, admonishing me for the temerity of having placed a part of my scaffolding on the Queen’s Highway without their express consent.

The following is my response to their correspondence to me. Readers will note the calm and unruffled tenor of my reply, as well as my appreciation for their edification.

I send this copy to the Dialogue so as only to alert fellow villagers to the seriousness of transgressing rules and regulations, as interpreted by those to whom we pay our Council Tax, from our own [already taxed] income.

Never let it be said that these people do not give us the best value for money.

Some folk might opine that my response is a small ‘over-reaction’, others might agree with my reply. I’m sure the Dialogue will welcome comment – as appropriate!

Your Ref. AL/AP/SEB/Diseworth

Dear Sirs,

Deposit of Things on the Highway. Highways Act 1980 Section 148 RE: Scaffolding on Carriageway.

Many thanks for your kind letter of 19th July, received yesterday, on the above subject as referenced.

I note the error of my ways, as described, and have now removed the offending 'things on the highway', within the 3 day timeframe requested. In mitigation I have to confess that I am not familiar with Section 148 of the Highways Act 1980 and so much appreciate the courtesy you have afforded me in bringing this matter to my attention.

However, given that you have found the time to write to me on this subject – laudable indeed, as you must also be battling with the overriding need to prioritise activities at a time of severe austerity whilst at the same time desperately trying to meet the significant need to achieve budgetary constraint and prudence during this highly recessionary period - in which constructive time management is essential so as to deliver best value for money – you will no doubt also find the time to read this response and ponder on a few well meant observations.

1. Your letter was addressed to 'The Owner/Occupier' and I was greeted as 'Sir/Madam'.
Your records will show that you have raised taxes on this property in the form of variously:- Rates, Poll Tax and [currently] Council Tax, on an annual - and ever increasing level – which I have been dutifully paying for the last thirty years. With my present contribution for the current year at circa £2.5k comes a name and a gender. It would have been courteous if both had been researched and correctly applied.
2. As a matter of interest, in my experience letters addressed to 'The Owner/ Occupier' predominate in the World of 'junk mail' and mainly involve such subjects as car insurance, life insurance, double glazing, inheritance opportunities in Nigeria, prize draws or similar. In our household they usually visit the shredder unopened. Fortunately, on this occasion your important missive escaped such a fate.

3. The final paragraph of your letter suggests that I contact '..the officer named above..' should I '..require further information or advice..'. Unfortunately I am unable to find the name of any 'officer named above' despite my best efforts. I have re-read your letter several times in search of this named officer and remain defeated. Maybe I'm still missing something – such as the opportunity to speak to someone able to offer help and advice?
4. Your letter advises that my scaffolding constitutes a 'nuisance/hazard to highway users'. This I appreciate, which is why I parked my car in front of said scaffolding - to specifically preclude any issue of nuisance/hazard by means of shielding the scaffolding from the traffic flow. A bit pointless that, I now realise, as in reality I clearly only substituted one 'nuisance/hazard' for another.
5. Your letter further says that 'lawful authority' is required to 'deposit' scaffolding on the highway. This I also now appreciate - thanks to your kind intervention. What I don't understand however, is how 'lawful authority' [i.e. a piece of paper demonstrating that one has visited the approved process] can make the scaffolding any less of a nuisance or a hazard than it was without the piece of paper. I appreciate that anarchy cannot be allowed to prevail but where went 'common sense'?
6. Being a responsible individual who has spent his working life operating in a safety critical industry, I conducted both my own Safety Analysis and Risk Assessment prior to erecting my tower scaffold. This exercise demonstrated that the probability of accident was minimal as was the consequence. Conversely, using a ladder in place of the scaffolding reversed the conclusion. Risk of accident would be high and the consequence of accident would be severe. I have revisited my calculations several times with critical intent but am unable to discover any obvious error.
7. Clearly your 'Customer Service Centre Team' came to a different conclusion, hence your letter to me. I would be interested to learn from you the methodology used in their calculations of both Safety and Risk so that I can benefit from what is obviously a much superior philosophy than that applied by myself.
8. It should be noted that Clements Gate, the 'highway' in question, is a residential cul-de-sac which therefore - by definition - means that it leads to nowhere. Thus, traffic flow is measured in single figures of vehicle movement per hour – maybe slightly more on a Thursday when our dustbins are emptied. This is because the refuse lorries have a statistically significant impact on the road usage during the 10am hour. It may be that this was the factor which skewed my Safety/Risk calculations?
9. Clements Gate is also used as much as a parking lot for holiday makers, flying from our local airport, as it is by village residents. These vehicles do indeed constitute a 'nuisance/hazard' but I doubt that you will be sending any of them a similar letter. No doubt they comply with the Highways Act 1980?

10. I do appreciate however, that the presence of my scaffolding tower [with a footprint on the road of 3 ft. wide by 9ft long] could well have constituted a 'nuisance' to the above category of highway user as it was denying them a parking space outside my house – two spaces if you include my car. This I now feel was somewhat selfish on my part. Had I achieved 'lawful authority' prior to erecting my scaffolding it follows that it would have made all the difference and these people would have happily understood, hopefully complimented me on the standard of my workmanship and then moved off [with alacrity] to park in front of someone else's house for the fortnight.
11. I am perplexed as to how my transgression was brought to your attention. I cannot envisage that any of my good neighbours would have lodged a complaint, we live in a friendly and understanding community in this village. In any event, I doubt that they are any more familiar with the Highways Act 1980 than am I [but I could be wrong, I often am]. I am therefore led to assume that one of your officers must have noticed the offending item when in transit to/ from the building site situated at the end of Clements Gate where an 'affordable housing' development is currently under construction. If this was the case would it not have been more effective if the officer had stopped to have an informal word with me, on site, about the requirements? This would have been more friendly, less costly and would have achieved a satisfactory result much more swiftly. If I were mischievous I would point out that this didn't happen because it would have involved a small modicum of common sense. But I'm not, so I won't.
12. Having now been made aware of the significant safety issues I can see the potential consequence of my thoughtless action. If a vehicle had indeed collided with my small tower scaffolding it could have demolished my house and ruptured the gas main. The resulting fire would require the attendance of the fire service. The scaffolding, now blocking the road [along with the burning vehicle], would have meant that the fire appliance could not have reached the house and so the fire could not have been extinguished. The resulting electrical short circuit would have blown the local sub station. This in turn would have had a chain reaction and caused all traffic lights within the locality to fail. Thus traffic at Junction 24 on the M I would have been brought to a standstill. The ensuing tailback, once rush hour arrived, would migrate, in no time at all, all the way back to London which would then become gridlocked. The subsequent chaos caused by this monumental jam would result in public frustration and riot. The consequent conflagration in this great metropolis, as people set fire to vehicles and buildings to vent their feelings, would then burn out of control because the emergency services would be a part of the gridlock and so be unable to react. In short, London would burn to the ground. Thus we would lose our Government and our financial institutions. This would bring political and fiscal chaos to the whole of mainland Europe. In hours rather than days, the meltdown would spread to all five continents. Thus would end civilisation as we know it.

All so obvious really, when you think about it. What a good thing you sent me your letter.

13. I have had one final reflection which I feel I should share with you. It is an unlikely scenario and I hesitate to mention it as it will no doubt give the impression that I am being somewhat uncharitable. I mention it only because, if correct, it obviates much of what I have said above and provides a simple solution to the problem.

My thought – and it has only just occurred to me and it is only a thought – is that maybe, just maybe, there is within your team a silly little jobsworth who has nothing better to do with his/her time than to write petty, obnoxious and unnecessary letters to people to prove a point and make said individual feel important.

Clearly such people are not important and you will know that this type of sad individual does no one any favours at all but contributes only to a feeling of disrespect for their office and those of their peers by the public.

In the unlikely event that this is indeed the case you will no doubt deal with the matter internally. The predictable response from such people is 'not me guv., it's the rules' [only a small variation on the Nazi defence, also often used].

You may bear in mind that I still have my scaffold and I also possess some rope. Maybe you could ensure that this individual fills his/her spare work time learning to tie a good slip knot. It might come in handy on my scaffold. Better still, retrain him/her to do some more constructive and cost effective work.

14. You should know that the dire threat to remove my scaffolding 'forthwith without Notice' and then charge me for the work involved, as expressed in your letter, has led to sleepless nights on my part. I have suffered from a repeat nightmare as a result of this threat. I don't remember all the detail [dreams are like that, as you know] but it definitely involves a sledgehammer and a nut. There's a fool in it somewhere too. Maybe now that I've removed the scaffolding from the road these nightmares will go away, as will the fool also. I do hope so.

Finally, perhaps you would enlighten me as to how I gain 'lawful authority' to place my scaffolding on the highway should I require to do so again at some future point?

In the meantime I thank you for your kind attention and look forward to your reply in due course.

Yours faithfully,

Long Whatton History Society Receives Award

Congratulations to LW History Society on receiving a Highly Commended Award from the County Museums Forum. The presentation was made at a grand reception at Snibston Park in the presence of leader of the County Council and leaders of the Borough Councils, including NW Leicestershire, Mr Nigel Smith, who afterwards congratulated the group on their achievement.

Long Whatton History Society is the newest member of the Museums Forum and the entry was based on the 70th Anniversary of the Reunion of the Wartime Babies born at Whatton House. The event took place last September in the presence of Lord & Lady Crawshaw and while over 60 'Babies' attended, many others had made contact with the History Society but were unable to attend.

Whatton House

The planning took over two years; Geoff Smith, secretary, contacted people through the Leicestershire villages website. Although the History Society is only a small group, the event attracted much support from the village and the neighbouring area. Hathern Band played wartime music on both days of the Reunion, the Community Bus, sponsored by East Midlands Airport, transported visitors from Diseworth and Long Whatton to Whatton House, an exhibition of wartime nursing memorabilia was on display at Diseworth Heritage Centre and Snibston Museum staged a display of wartime baby clothes.

The support from Long Whatton residents contributed to the success of the event and attracted the comments of the judges. The Scouts were on hand on both days offering help with setting up marquees and staffing the car park. The Community Centre loaned the marquees and the Organic Farm hosted cream teas while local residents offered all forms of assistance in transporting chairs etc to Whatton House. Commemoration Services were held at All Saints and the Methodist Church and local schools were invited to the Diseworth Heritage Centre to view the exhibition and learn about life in World War 2 Britain.

To recognise the achievement members of the History Society were invited to a Reception for all winners in NW Leicestershire by the Mr Nigel Smith, Chair of NW Leicestershire District Council.

DISEWORTH VILLAGE HALL

As most will have noticed in passing the new notice board has been erected. The board was kindly donated by Mr Eric Clarke of The Green, and is for the advertising of forthcoming events and general notices. Anyone wishing to place a notice should leave the item at 9 Page Lane. As well as thanking Eric on behalf of the village and hall committee, it's also an opportunity to thank Frosty and his mate (our 2 resident moles) who seem to love digging holes as and when necessary, (free of charge by the way). As well as erecting the notice board a working party also formed of committee members, partners and friends to clear out the stage area, and rear playgroup cupboard, so many thanks to all those who helped on these projects.

On other news, the committee held its first meeting recently, with many new members and many new ideas, with emphasis on continuing to improve the hall on a short and long term plan, which will include new exterior doors and sound system (including tv/dvd) being approved immediately and maybe larger developments in the future. This being only the start in what we hope will create the focal point for the village and once again start to bring the community together. To this end we are always open to support and suggestions from the residents of the village be it in a committee or non committee capacity and would be more than happy to hear what our residents would like from their hall so we can further discuss what we are able to deliver in the short or long term. A few ideas to get you thinking would be a part time Doctors surgery, blood donor centre or a community evening, bingo and all. Although the hall gets reasonably well booked in the evenings there is still much scope for bookings in the daytime.

Finally it was once again agreed at the last meeting to hold the Fireworks Evening. This will take place on November 5th. (further details in the October Dialogue). And many thanks to the new influx of new 200 Club members who have come on board to join those already supporting us.

Love Food Hate Waste Community Cooking Classes

Introduction

As part of Leicestershire's Love Food Hate Waste Campaign this year, we are focusing on providing residents with practical skills and knowledge to help reduce their food waste. As part of this, we would like to use the medium of cooking classes to enable residents to pick up these practical skills and knowledge. In particular, we would like to:

- improve confidence in cooking with leftovers
- provide greater awareness of the issue of food waste
- provide greater awareness of the importance of shopping lists, meal planning, portion control, food storage in reducing food waste
- improve awareness of the financial and time benefits of improved food management and of reducing food waste

At this point, we feel that the Love Food Hate Waste practical skills and knowledge could be delivered as part of a 2-4 hour session, depending on how much detail/depth that is gone into. We are keen to explore the possibilities of working with individuals or organisations that already provide cooking classes and integrating the Love Food Hate Waste practical skills and knowledge into existing courses or providing a bespoke Love Food Hate Waste cooking class.

Background

Love Food Hate Waste is a national campaign run by WRAP (Waste Resources & Action Programme) that aims to raise awareness of the need to reduce the amount of food thrown away in the UK every year. The campaign gives tips and advice to the public by showing how shopping more efficiently, using correct storage, planning proportions and cooking with leftovers can help reduce waste and save the average household up to £50 a month.

WRAP has identified that reduced confidence of cooking with leftovers, and low knowledge of cooking and preparing food are major barriers to people reducing their food waste.

In Leicestershire, we are in the third year of the campaign. During the first year we focused on making residents aware of food waste as an issue and what it was costing the average UK household, during the second year we focused on providing advice and tips on how people could reduce their food waste, while this year we are focusing on providing residents with practical skills and knowledge to reduce their food waste and save money.

Project Description

We wish to use the medium of cooking classes to enable residents to pick up the Love Food Hate Waste practical skills and knowledge that will enable them to reduce their food waste and save money. In particular, we would like to:

- improve confidence in cooking with leftovers
- provide greater awareness of the issue of food waste
- provide greater awareness of the importance of shopping lists, meal planning, portion control, food storage in reducing food waste
- improve awareness of the financial and time benefits of improved food management and of reducing food waste

We would like to hold the cooking classes in the community and use the experience of providing the classes to possibly produce a toolkit that could be used by others to run Love Food Hate Waste Cooking Classes in their communities.

Key Messages

The key messages of the campaign are:

- Learn to cook with leftovers to save money and reduce waste
- Save up to £50 a week through reducing food waste
- Get to know about portion sizes and food date labels
- Plan your meals and use a shopping list

Participants

We see the cooking classes being of particular interest and benefit to those with low cooking confidence, on low incomes, with families or younger people.

Outcomes

The project is seeking to achieve the following outcomes:

- A reduction in the amount of food waste produced by the residents of Leicestershire.
- A reduction in the amount of money Leicestershire residents waste on throwing away food.
- The provision of a tangible resource in the form of the Love Food Hate Waste Cooking Class Toolkit that residents can use to help others reduce their food waste and save money.
- Provide people with the beneficial lifelong skills and confidence to cook with leftovers and to better manage their food.

Timescales

Ideally, we would like to deliver cooking classes during September and October 2010, which is when our peak promotion of the Love Food Hate Waste campaign takes place. However, these timescales can be flexible as we recognise they are quite tight, and we may need to coincide with any activities you already have planned.

The project has potential synergies with other initiatives such as healthy eating, growing your own, living on a budget and cooking skills.

LONG WHATTON & DISEWORTH PARISH COUNCIL NEWS

JULY

July meetings of the Council can sometimes be quite short as people turn their attention to warmer weather and holidays. And so it happened this time. However, the Council did discuss how best to assist Long Whatton Village show committee urgently take advantage of the valuable offer of a storage shed, available also for other community uses. It was agreed in principle that, after seeing quotations, the Council would make a grant covering the cost of the concrete base for the building.

Police based at the airport had offered a presentation about their work there, particularly about anti-terrorism measures. They wished to keep the Council and the public generally informed of their work. The Council has invited an officer to give the presentation at a future meeting.

Chairman Tom Wilkins explained that he had had a busy month, attending the Diseworth Open Gardens event, the AGM of the CPRE local branch and two excellent Councillor/Chairman training sessions.

After many attempts since January to get County Highways to acknowledge the Council's request for salt bins in the Parish, the Clerk had finally pointed out to them that it would soon be Winter! This received a response and we now, once again, await the outcome.

Separately, County Highways have consulted the Council at an early stage in the process of providing speed reduction measures in Long Whatton. The Council has welcomed the proposals but have pointed out a number of concerns about the details and have suggested a meeting on site to discuss the matter. A full public consultation is promised in due course.

The Council has assisted over many months with the pursuit of an answer to the "eyesore" of many years of shuttering along the Grimes Gate, Diseworth boundary of a building site within the Conservation area. It has become clear that neither the District Council nor the landowner is able to change the situation at present and Councillors have now reluctantly accepted the impasse.

The Community Forum to be held on 7th July in Kegworth has an item on its agenda about the bus service and Councillors are likely to attend.

The seemingly large amount of land and property currently for sale in Diseworth was noted with some concern about the potential for future uses which might adversely affect the village. The importance was stressed of the public being involved at the strategic planning stage when land uses were determined. Often it was much too late to object at the time of individual applications, especially in the case of large-scale developments.

Councillors noted the dedicated service which Mrs Kathleen Payter had given to her village as Editor of 'Long Whatton News' and the Council is sending her a letter of thanks. Additionally, it was decided that in wishing the new Editor well in his task and while acknowledging the great value of this local newsletter and the dedication of its volunteers, the publication should be asked if it would consider ways of broadening the range of current news it publishes.

AUGUST

Having discussed last month how best to assist Long Whatton Village show committee urgently take advantage of the valuable offer of a storage shed, available also for other community uses, at the August meeting Councillors were delighted to note that the building had now been erected, in double-quick time!

Andrew Bridgen, MP attended the meeting. He raised a number of issues relevant to parish councils, including affordable housing, issues surrounding parking at the airport (as well as Diseworth being used as an airport car park), parish council publicity and the government's intention to help by minimising irrelevant rules and regulations which had expanded so much in recent years. The various issues were discussed and co-operation and assistance promised. He would go to take a look at the affordable housing developments as it had been explained to him that the people of the Parish had already taken this forward following the outcome of the Parish Plan.

It was noted that there had regrettably been a "mini crime wave" in Long Whatton. Steps were being taken to revive the Neighbourhood Watch scheme there.

Having pointed out to County Highways a number of issues with the proposed speed reduction measures in Long Whatton, Councillors had attended a site meeting with a Highways Officer. This had proved to be very helpful, with a number of the Council's views being taken on board. There will soon be a formal public consultation on the matter. The annual safety inspection of the play areas had now been carried by RoSPA no major issues had been identified. The Report would be examined and any recommendations considered and acted upon as necessary.

Preparations to draw up proposals for the management of the new allotment site in Diseworth were in hand. These would become available for discussion with prospective allotment holders at a joint meeting arranged for October.

County Highways had agreed with a number of recommendations made by the Diseworth Village Residents' Parking Group and had also advised that the requests for salt bins in both villages were to be assessed shortly. The request for hard standing for bus passengers at the bus stop in West End had been quickly met. They had also taken steps to improve the footpath at Hathern Road and would be including further works into a future programme.

Representatives of Long Whatton School would be invited to discuss any ways in which the Parish Council might be able to help with the School Travel Plan.

Upon being invited by the District Council to comment on their proposals for new executive arrangements, it was decided to recommend the “strong leader” proposal rather than having an elected mayor as this would be a costly and unnecessary change at this time.

Councillors had been encouraged to note that, gradually, a wider range of reports were appearing in Long Whatton News.

There are regular reports from both villages about hedges and bushes in residents’ front gardens which become overgrown and impede the use of the pavement. Some users (e.g. those who use a wheelchair or buggies, etc.) are seriously impeded and there is often a danger of injury caused by overhanging trees and hedges. The Parish Council urges everyone to ensure that their own trees, hedges, bushes, etc. do not cause such inconvenience and danger to passers-by. Thank you.

FRIENDLY FOODS TO FEND OFF DIABETES

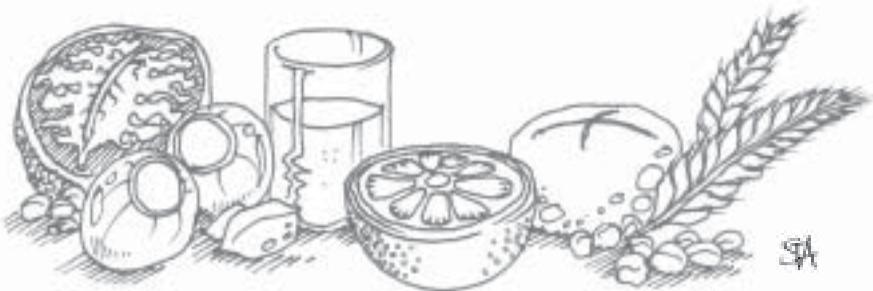

Type 2 diabetes is a well known disease that tends to develop very slowly and it is known fact that being overweight is a risk factor, but that is not the whole picture. Even people who seem to be of normal weight may have a condition called insulin resistance.

This means that their insulin is not performing the task of controlling their blood sugar as effectively as it should. Insulin resistance frequently exists in people who are diagnosed with diabetes a decade or so later on. Some experts are convinced that diet is significant in preventing the onset of insulin resistance and so reducing the risk of developing diabetes later in life.

Eating high amounts of saturated fats found in red meat and dairy products dramatically increases the risk of developing diabetes. Also foods high in sugar, white bread, sugary breakfast cereals and to a lesser degree things like instant mashed potatoes, carrots and honey should be eaten with caution. These foods have quite a high glycemic index, but are okay if eaten sparingly with other foods that are low on the glycemic index such as kidney beans, lentils, butter beans, lima beans, whole-wheat spaghetti, sweet corn, sweet potatoes and green leafy vegetables.

The good news is that there are lots of foods that can help to reduce the risk of developing insulin resistance and ultimately diabetes. People who consume lean, fatty and canned fish two or three times a week seems to have a greatly reduced risk of developing diabetes. Onions either raw or cooked seem to affect the liver's metabolism of glucose, and slow down the destruction of insulin. Broccoli is an excellent source of chromium, a trace mineral that greatly increases the ability of insulin to metabolize glucose. Fenugreek seeds, cinnamon, cloves, turmeric and bay leaves all have drug like properties that help insulin work more efficiently to keep blood sugar in check. Finally, bring on the beans, because eating high fibre complex carbohydrates like legumes can help to prevent the development of diabetes and may even help to keep it under control.

Genealogy Information regarding the Mee Family.

Subject: Genealogy Information regarding the Mee Family.

A number of years ago, (possibly 11-12 years ago) I wrote to the Diseworth Dialogue, requesting information on the Mee family. I live in Canada and my Grandfather, Oliver Mee, was born in Diseworth. His father was Israel Mee, born in Diseworth around 1863. His mother was Mary Mee, later marrying a Charles Gascoigne. Her parents were Richard Mee and Sarah (Oliver) Mee.

At the time, the information request was also published in some local newspapers and a kind lady had a copy of an old family bible. She photo copied about 3 pages of the newspaper and mailed it to me. It gave me the birth date of my great grandfather and took me back 3 more generations into the Oliver family tree.

I have now moved from BC Canada to Ontario, Canada (3000 miles away) and all my genealogy information I had was left in storage. I do not recall this lady's name, however if she sees this, would it be possible for her to contact me with some of the information? I do believe that she was a school teacher and was wanting to get into some more family history once she retired. I have now begun to restart my interest in finding out more about my roots, and specifically, I would like to know more about the Oliver Family.

I had thought, from memory, that Sarah Oliver's father was John and I believe she had a brother Henry, who witnessed her marriage to Richard Mee. I would like to know if I have her father's name correct and what her mother's name and siblings names were with any dates. My name is Kathleen Woodward and I can be reached at either my email of geney_88@yahoo.com or my mailing address of 2341 Midlothian Rd.

Diseworth Working Weekend

11th and 12th September 2010

The Kegworth Vintage Agricultural Club is holding its fifth charity fundraiser for the Derbyshire, Leicestershire and Rutland Air Ambulance and local charities on 11th and 12th September 2010 at Kingston Park Farms, West Leake Lane, New Kingston NG11 0DN, (near Kegworth) by kind permission of Lord Belper and Mr. Pat Taylor and Sons.

Last year Diseworth Working Weekend gave away more than £7,000 – nearly double the amount raised from the first year. Over £5,000 was donated to the Air Ambulance with the remainder going to local charities.

As we did last year, throughout the weekend there will be 'Grandad's Harvesting' – a fantastic working show of vintage combine harvesters, threshing machines, balers and tractors recreating the 1950's harvesting – a sight not to be missed.

This year is the 50th anniversary of the Fordson Super Major tractor and we hope to have a large contingent of Super Major owners ploughing and exhibiting.

The main event will be a large ploughing match, commencing at 10 a.m. on the Sunday. There will be a large number of working tractors – County, Roadless, Doe, Marshall, Fords etc., from all around the country. Crawlers and other makes of tractors will also be working and there will be teams of Shire Horses. As well as the participating ploughmen and their tractors, there will be many tractors in the static section.

There will be trade stands of all types, both inside and outside of the marquees, to include local produce, crafts, parts, hardware, etc. Also there will be a hog roast, refreshments, bar, raffles, children's entertainment, etc.

All proceeds to charity - please come and join us
